A follow-up examination of a population-based cohort was conducted to examine the psychosocial characteristics of long-term sick-leave patients. The cohort consisted of all patients who in 1974 had received sickness benefit for 4 or more weeks (n = 91). In the follow-up study, the patients (n = 80) who had been on sick-leave for a year or more (median, 1.9 years) were individually interviewed (Jan 1, 1980-Sept 30, 1984). In accordance with the National Institute of Medicine, the psychosocial characteristics of long-term sick-leave patients were examined by a number of variables. The results indicated that long-term sick-leave patients were characterized by more severe psychopathology, more conflicts with their partners and difficulties concerning the children, lower self-esteem, more symptoms of depression, and poorer coping skills than did other patients who had been on sick-leave for shorter periods. The only psychosocial variable which was related to the amount of sick-leave was the number of suicidal attempts. Prominent lawyers for the retailers and the retailers themselves have warned against the move. "The time has come to tell retailers to keep their prices down — not tax us," said an antitrust activist in Aichi Prefecture's Toyota, near the city of Toyota, on Thursday. While shoppers are unhappy with the recent price hikes, they think they have little recourse other than to let merchants know what they think of the edict. "If they keep their prices high, we'll refuse to shop with them." The National Association of Shoppers Unions, which drafts the petition, thinks the boycott would hurt the retailers more than the customers. They are hopeful the consumer movement will create a groundswell that will make the government repeal the prices-donation system and the new tax. Sling TV, a streaming service backed by Dish, is expanding in more markets, adding 34 new markets where the service will be available on at least one of the major platform and filling in the gaps where that service is not available in a particular market yet. 3da54e8ca3
