Ralph Scott (1871–1934) Ralph Scott was born in Melbourne, Australia on October 20, 1871. He and his family moved to Sydney, Australia in 1882 and he became a student at the Sydney Technical School (now the Sydney College of the Arts). From 1896 to 1902, he studied music under the well known music teacher, Dr Henry Wood. His first professional music position was a position in the Australian Broadcasting Company's orchestra in 1903. In 1905, he married the violinist Sybil Oliphant who had studied with him at the Royal College of Music in London and became one of the finest violinists of her time. In 1910, the Scott family moved to London to work for the BBC. While in London, Scott conducted the BBC band, the Symphony Orchestra, the Women's Orchestra, the Symphony for Men and the Players' orchestra. During World War I, he served in the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve and was posted to a ship in the Black Sea. In 1919, he returned to England to begin a permanent position with the BBC, and became its full-time musical director. In 1920, Scott founded the BBC's School of Music in London. His first year's student intake consisted of 25 students, with their parents paying a fee of 2 pounds. Over the next decade, the school grew to over 400 students and reached a peak of 1200 students in 1933. In 1920, Scott began teaching courses at the Royal College of Music in London. In 1934, Scott conducted the London 4bc0debe42
