Patient-reported outcomes after total hip replacement--assessment with the Western Ontario and McMaster Universities Osteoarthritis Index. Patient-reported outcomes (PROs) are important tools in assessing health status and should be routinely used in clinical practice and in trials of treatments for osteoarthritis. The aim of this study was to investigate the reliability of the Western Ontario and McMaster Universities Osteoarthritis Index (WOMAC) subscales as an indicator of pain and disability. A prospective, single-group design was used with concurrent comparison with a physical activity reference standard to examine correlations between the WOMAC subscales and pain and physical function. Participants were 100 consecutive, consenting patients referred for total hip replacement. Outcome data were collected in the day of admission and 2 weeks later, and physical activity was monitored for 2 weeks. The WOMAC pain and function subscales showed high reliability (95% confidence interval [CI]: 0.91-0.95 and 0.92-0.96, respectively). The WOMAC pain subscale correlated well with a pain meter ( $r = 0.43$ ; 95% CI: 0.33-0.52) and with physical function ( $r = 0.52$ ; 95% CI: 0.43-0.60). High correlations were also observed between the WOMAC function subscale and physical function ( $r = 0.61$ ; 95% CI: 0.53-0.68). High correlations were also observed between the WOMAC function subscale and physical function ( $r = 0.61$ ; 95% CI: 0.53-0.68). High correlations were also observed between the WOMAC pain and function subscales ( $r = 0.64$ ; 95% CI: 0.55-0.71). The WOMAC pain and function subscales are reliable measures for pain and physical function and may be used to assess pain and physical function after total hip replacement.

Ellis the Lion Ellis the Lion is a bronze sculpture by Felix del Mar. It is installed outside the former White House, in Washington, D.C., in the United States. The bronze sculpture depicts a seated lion. The work, which was
